Module 1: Neurophysiology and Integration

Introduction

1. What is the function of the nervous system? The nervous system is responsible for coordinating and controlling the body's activities. It receives information from the environment and the body, processes it, and sends out instructions to the muscles and glands to respond.
2. What are the main components of the nervous system? The nervous system is composed of the brain, spinal cord, and peripheral nerves. The brain is the central processing unit, the spinal cord is the main communication pathway, and the peripheral nerves connect the brain and spinal cord to the rest of the body.
3. What is the function of the brain? The brain is the central processing unit of the nervous system. It receives information from the senses, processes it, and sends out instructions to the muscles and glands to respond. It is also responsible for controlling the body's internal organs and systems.
4. What is the function of the spinal cord? The spinal cord is the main communication pathway between the brain and the rest of the body. It carries information from the brain to the muscles and glands, and from the muscles and glands back to the brain.
5. What is the function of the peripheral nerves? The peripheral nerves are the network of nerves that connect the brain and spinal cord to the rest of the body. They carry information from the brain and spinal cord to the muscles and glands, and from the muscles and glands back to the brain and spinal cord.
