This title explores how conceptual models of ecosystem dynamics can be applied to the recovery of degraded systems. It discusses the basic concepts and models and explores implications of scientific research on restoration practice. BOOK PUBLISHER WEBSITE PICES Press, 2003 Abstracts of the Papers, 1993 Terrestrial Ecosystems John D. Aber, Jerry M. Melillo, 2001 Covering the complexities and interconnected nature of the world as well as the impact of mankind on the environment, this interdisciplinary book presents a holistic view of ecosystem function and is designed to help students understand and predict the environmental future of the Earth. The authors provide a complete view of the environment from the Taiga Forests of interior Alaska to the desert plains of the Serengeti. While retaining the previous edition's basic four-part structure, the authors have reviewed every topic and consulted the recent literature in each case in order to present the most complete and accurate picture of the state of ecosystem studies today. The Future of Cetaceans in a Changing World William C. G. Burns, Alexander Gillespie, 2003 This volume consists of fifteen chapters by prominent authorities in the fields of cetacean law, policy and science. The overarching purpose of the book is to assess the challenges faced by cetacean species in the 21st century and the role of legal, political and scientific institutions to meet these challenges. The book also contains several chapters that address the abiding ethical questions dividing those who seek to continue to exploit cetaceans as resources and those who maintain that direct exploitation should be permanently banned on the grounds of sentience or intelligence.
