Reflections on the Law of War Frits Kalshoven, 2007-05-31 The papers collected in this volume span a 35 year period of active involvement in the reaffirmation and development of international humanitarian law A process under that name started in 1971 and ended in 1977 with the adoption of two Protocols Additional to the Geneva Conventions of 1949 one for international and one for internal armed conflicts Subsequent developments brought a narrowing of this gap between international and internal armed conflicts as well as growing recognition of the interplay between the law of armed conflict and human rights the rediscovery of individual criminal liability for violations of international humanitarian law the introduction of further prohibitions or restrictions on the use of specified weapons and so on In contrast with these positive developments the period was negatively characterised by increasing disrespect not only for some or other minor rule such as what to do with cash taken from a prisoner of war at the time of his capture but for the very principles underlying the entire body of the law of armed conflict respect for the other as a human being and hence humane treatment of prisoners of war and other detainees protection of civilians Throughout the period the author's activities ranged from participation in lawmaking and law interpreting exercises through attempts at explaining the law of armed conflict in its historical context and making propaganda for its faithful implementation to critical or even bewildered observance of actual events The papers brought together here reflect these diverse angles

New Technologies and the Law of Armed Conflict Hitoshi Nasu, Robert McLaughlin, 2013-12-23 Modern technological development has been both rapid and fundamentally transformative of the means and methods of warfare and of the broader environment in which warfare is conducted In many cases technological development has been stimulated by and dedicated to addressing military requirements On other occasions technological developments outside the military sphere affect or inform the conduct of warfare and military expectations The introduction of new technologies such as information technology space technologies nanotechnology and robotic technologies into our civil life and into warfare is expected to influence the application and interpretation of the existing rules of the law of armed conflict In this book scholars and practitioners working in the fields critically examine the potential legal challenges arising from the use of new technologies and future directions of legal development in light of the specific characteristics and challenges each technology

Review Natalia Jevglevskaja, 2021-12-16 International law requires that before any new weapon is developed purchased or modified the legality of its use must be determined This book offers the first comprehensive and systemic analysis of the law mandating such assessments Article 36 of the 1977 Additional Protocol I to the Geneva Conventions Underpinned by empirical research the book explores the challenges the weapons review authorities are facing when examining emerging military technology such as autonomous weapons systems and autonomous cyber capabilities It argues that Article 36 is sufficiently broad to cover a wide range of military systems and offers States the necessary flexibility to adopt a process that best suits their organisational demands While sending a clear signal that law should not simply follow technological developments but rather steer them the provision has its limits however which are shaped and defined by the interpretative decisions made by States Complex Battlespaces Christopher M. Ford, Winston S. Williams, 2019 The conduct of warfare is constantly shaped by new forces that create complexities in the battlespace for military operations This inaugural volume of the Lieber Studies Series seeks to address several issues in the confluence of law and armed conflict featuring chapters from world class scholars policymakers and other government officials military and civilian legal practitioners and other thought leaders who examine the role of the law of armed conflict in current and future armed conflicts around the world

Howard, George J. Andreopoulos, Mark R. Shulman, 1994 This book explores not only the formal constraints on the conduct of war throughout Western history but
