The Will of Change Eva-Maria Maggi, 2015-10-13 In this book Eva Maria Maggi argues that the European Union EU had an impact on institutional reform processes in North Africa in cases where major domestic actors agreed She analyzes how political actors in Morocco used EU neighborhood policies to shape economic and environmental policy between 1995 and 2008 Maggi argues that it was not the design of the EU's neighborhood policies but rather the will of change of domestic actors in Morocco that determined the pace direction of reform and the extent to which the EU continues to play a role in them While Moroccan politics were indeed europeanized Maggi highlights the role of domestic actors who so effectively managed to put forth their own policy priorities and essentially moroccanized the ENP New Europe - Old Values? Nada Bodiřoga-Vukobrat, Siniša Rodin, Gerald Sander, 2016-08-23 This book explores the reactions to Europeanization and globalization in times of economic distress including the transformation of European values in national legal cultures The authors explore how European values tradition and new legal challenges interconnect and dictate the paths of transition between old and new Europe The first chapter starts with a question can Roman Legal Tradition play a role of identity factor towards a New Europe Can it be considered as a general value identifying new Europe built on a minimum core of principles persona dominum obligation contract and inheritance composing the whole European private law tradition Subsequent chapters attempt to provide possible responses to the question what is Europe today The answers diverge depending on the research area The inherent dichotomy of human rights protection in Europe and the concept of one law one court are investigated in the second chapter whereas the third chapter focuses on asylum and the interrelation and interdependence of the Court of Justice of the EU and the European Court of Human Rights The next three chapters concentrate on matters of equal treatment and non discrimination The first contribution in this part reflects on the crisis and methodological and conceptual issues faced by modern anti discrimination law It is followed by a specific analysis of the empowerment of women or gender balancing in company boards The third contribution reveals the impact of the Croatian anti discrimination law on private law relations The next chapter deals with the issue of social rights in Croatia and the method of their regulation in the context of the new European values The immense challenges posed by the market integration imperative and democratic transition have brought about different reactions in the national legal systems and legal cultures of both old and new Member States As such Europe has effectively been reunited but what about the convergence of national legal cultures This is the focal point of the remaining chapters which focus on various issues from internal market competition law consumer welfare liberalization of network industries to the EU capital market The magnitude of EU activity in these areas offers conclusive evidence that old and new paradigms are evolving and shaping the future of the EU Globalization of Europe Dekker, 1989-01-01 Globalisation Vs Europeanisation Léonce Bekemans, 2013 Will Europe work? Martin Kohli, Mojca Novak, 2001 Printbegr nsninger Der kan printes kapitlvels Old Europe Vs. Institute of International Relations, European Union Research Forum (EURF), 2003      From European Crisis to Political Union of Europe Stergios Misios, 2017-04 Although the European states are strangling for over half a decade to resolve the euro crisis critical open questions on what kind of a European Union they want still remain thus suffering from a political crisis Which is the pragmatic next step Should Europe follow the road towards federalism playing a major role as a global player or will continue with small steps until the right political moment suffering from economic stagnation or worst heading for a disorderly disintegration Is further mutualisation possible without appropriate political integration Could the Eurozone have a banking union and common deposit insurance system without political union It s a common secret that the crucial issue behind all the above questions is the concession of national sovereignty a hard political issue which justifies the severity of the European crisis The crisis has only been paused Europe can t stay in the middle of the river forever without a true union Eurozone s crisis will re emerge The main idea of this book is that the ultimate goal of the European crisis is the political union of Europe It seems that the European crisis which began in 2010 about two years after the collapse of the Lehman Brothers will be the beginning of a long political and economic stagnation until the EU solve their structural weaknesses but this could be done only with additional transfer of sovereignty The EU s current institutions are inadequate for a monetary union while monetary policy is decided jointly at European level economic and fiscal policies remain in the member states authority The debt crisis has as a result established the European partial banking union a European Monetary Fund ESM and some others solidarity mechanisms which was unimaginable before the crisis but has damaged the political credibility of the European states Because of the crisis the tensions among EU member states have reached a breaking point The political fragmentation in correlation with the rising populism and Euroscepticism will probably halt the long European integration process causing farther escalation and maybe a serious crisis before achieving the fiscal economic federation of Eurozone and later the political union of Europe During the next few years after the elections in France and Germany in 2017 we will probably see the beginning of the next episode The political union of the multinational Europe will be a milestone of new globalization After the establishment of the political union at later stage and the completion of the transatlantic trade and investment partnership TTIP it seems that the creation of a single transatlantic economic entity like an economic NATO will inevitably follow We will probably not see short term progress on free trade talks between the US and the EU due to political pressures but at the end the two allies will materialize the economic NATO to face the Chinese challenges This will in turn redefine the meaning of power inside the new era of globalization in various fields such as regionalization global economic governance financial globalization and trans regional mega trade agreements in a broader multidimensional way Under the above prospects and mostly because of the rising Asia and the aggressive Russia Europe s road to political union it s one way situation even in the case of an upcoming existential crisis However the federalization of Europe would be a model for the regional integration in other continents The countries have already begun to cede much of their sovereignty to supranational regional institutions regrouping in large regional trade associations EU ASEAN GCC EEU AFRICAN UNION MERCOSUR and NAFTA In today s globalised world the supranational regional organizations became central to world politics we are moving from a world of national states towards a world of regions and states Why Europe Will Run the 21st Century Mark Leonard,2011-08-25 Those who believe Europe to be weak and ineffectual are wrong Turning conventional wisdom on its head Why Europe Will Run the 21st Century sets out a vision for a century in which Europe will dominate not America This is the book that will make your mind up about Europe The New Europe: Economy, Society and Environment David PINDER, A New Era for Europe Unia Europejska.
