

DNA Replication

DNA replication is the first step in both mitosis and meiosis. This process requires that a cell unwind the length of an entire chromosome in segments to be copied. These copies must be exact; without any errors. The process will end with an exact copy of one chromosome's DNA.

The process begins when an enzyme known as helicase, unwinds the DNA. Helicase accomplishes this by breaking hydrogen bonds between each nucleotide. In human DNA, it would be impossible for the cell to handle the unwinding of the entire DNA molecule at one time. There simply would not be enough room in the nucleus of the cell. As a result, helicase will only unwind as much DNA as is necessary. As soon as it is replicated, the DNA molecule can wind back up into a more compact structure.

The replication of DNA also uses origins of replication to start the process. Organisms with very large genomes would take days to replicate due to their size. As a result, multiple origins of replication usually form to replicate simultaneously and speed the process along. This means that the replication of DNA will proceed in two directions until the entire molecule is copied.

The easiest way to understand DNA replication is through the use of a visual known as a replication fork. This shows the 5' (pronounced five prime) end of the DNA and the 3' end. The 5' end always ends with a phosphate and the 3' with a hydroxide. This also makes it easier to understand why DNA is
