El Nino Historical And Paleoclimatic Aspects Of The Southern Oscillation:

El Niño Henry F. Diaz,Vera Markgraf,1992 This 1993 book enhances our understanding of the mechanisms involved in the low frequency behavior of the El Nino Southern Oscillation ENSO phenomenon El Niño and the Southern Oscillation Henry F. Diaz,Vera Markgraf,2000-11-09 The El Ni o Southern Oscillation ENSO phenomenon is a recurrent feature of the climate in tropical regions In this volume leading experts summarize information gained over the past decade concerning diverse aspects of ENSO which have led to marked improvements in our ability to forecast its development months or seasons in advance This volume compares ENSO s modern morphology and variability with its recent historic and prehistoric behaviour It expands and updates Diaz and Markgraf s earlier volume El Ni o Historical and Paleoclimatic Aspects of the Southern Oscillation 1992 Cambridge University Press The volume will be of importance to a broad range of scientists in meteorology oceanography hydrology geosciences ecology public health emergency management response and mitigation and decision making It will also be used as a supplementary textbook and reference source in graduate courses in environmental studies Encyclopedia of Coastal Science M. Schwartz,2006-11-08 Honorable Mention Award for Excellence in Scholarly and Professional Publishing Maurice Schwartz Editor of the much acclaimed Encyclopedia of Beaches and Coastal Environments Hutchinson Ross 1982 has now brought forth a new volume with a fresh interdisciplinary approach that includes geomorphology ecology engineering technology oceanography and human activities as they relate to coasts Within its covers the Encyclopedia of Coastal Science includes many aspects of the coastal sciences that are only to be found scattered among scientific literature Being broadly interdisciplinary in its treatment of coasts the Encyclopedia of Coastal Science features contributions by 245 well known international specialists in their respective fields and is abundantly illustrated with line drawings and photographs Not only does this volume offer an extensive number of entries it also includes various appendices an illustrated glossary of coastal geomorphology and extensive bibliographic listings This Encyclopedia thus provides a comprehensive reference work for students professionals as well as informed lay readers The Medieval Warm Period Malcolm K. Hughes, Henry F. Diaz,1994 The Medieval Warm Period and the Little Ice Age are widely considered to have been the major features of the Earth s climate over the past 1000 years In this volume the issue of whether there really was a Medieval Warm Period and if so where and when is addressed The types of evidence examined include historical documents tree rings ice cores glacial geological records borehole temperature paleoecological data and records of solar receipts inferred from cosmogenic isotopes Growth in the availability of several of these types of data in recent years and technical advances in their derivation and use warrant this state of the art re examination of Medieval Warm Period The book will be of value to all those with an interest in the natural variability of the climate system for example those concerned with anticipating and detecting anthropogenic climate change Synoptic and Dynamic Climatology Roger G. Barry,Andrew M. Carleton,2013-03-07 Synoptic and Dynamic Climatology provides the first comprehensive account of the dynamical behaviour and mechanisms of the global climate system and its components together with a modern survey of synoptic scale weather systems in the tropics and extratropics and of the methods and applications of synoptic climate classification It is unrivalled in the scope and detail of its contents The work is thoroughly up to date with extensive bibliographies by chapter It is illustrated with nearly 300 figures and plates Part 1 provides an introduction to the global climate system and the space time scales of weather and climate processes followed by a chapter on climate data and their analysis Part 2 describes and explains the characteristics of the general circulation of the global atmosphere and includes the nature and causes of global teleconnection patterns Part 3 discusses synoptic weather systems in the extratropics and tropics and satellite based climatologies of synoptic features It also describes the applications of synoptic climatology and summarises current climatic research and its directions

El Niño, Southern Oscillation & Climatic Variability Rob Allan, Robert J. Allan, Janette Lindesay, David E. Defining the Pacific Fred Spier, 2024-08-01 This volume lays the physical and conceptual groundwork for the Pacific World series exploring both the constraints imposed and the opportunities offered to humanity by the physical environment of the Pacific region Organized from the perspectives of Big History and macro geography the volume presents a series of major studies and surveys by authors from a range of disciplines It opens with perspectives on the ocean and closes with questions of human settlement diffusion and trans Pacific contacts Geologists write of the origins of the Pacific its geological structure and the problem of tsunamis climatologists and oceanographers discuss the El Ni o Southern Oscillation and the ocean waters biologists and biogeographers find patterns in the life of the Basin as is shown all these have their impact on the potential of the region for human use and settlement Finally geographers anthropologists and archaeologists deal with the peopling of the Pacific islands the settlement of the Americas and the incidence and importance of pre modern links across the Pacific

Changes and Disturbance in Tropical Rainforest in South-East Asia D. M. Newbery, T. H. Clutton-Brock, Ghilleen T. Prance, Royal Society (Great Britain), 2000 Views on the dynamics of tropical forests are changing rapidly with the recognition that their environment is variable on the decadal to century scale Fluctuating climatic conditions partly determine tropical forest structure species composition and dynamics Tropical communities are also highly contingent in space and time with respect to site and historical factors Tropical forests have experienced to some degree this disturbance regime in the past but climatologists are now predicting increasingly frequent extreme events in the new century The combination of increasing deforestation and land use conversion by man plus an increasingly variable environment means a situation that could be very difficult to manage

El Niño, History and Crisis Richard H. Grove, John Chappell, 2000 By bringing together the latest historical and scientific studies of the El Nino and its effect on past and present civilisations this text provides descriptions of the local effects of the disastrous 1997 1998 El Nino in Papua New Guinea and in Indonesia Climates of the Southern Continents Jack E. Hobbs, J. A. Lindesay, Howard A. Bridgman, 1998

This book fills a significant gap in the climatological literature providing a comprehensive assessment of the climates of the southern hemisphere It is the first book of its type to provide a consolidated view of the climates of southern Africa Australia South America and Antarctica addressing past and future climates as well as those of the present Present climates are considered in the first part of the book to provide a background against which past and future climates can be investigated Emphasis in the book is on the inter relatedness of global synoptic and smaller scale aspects of southern hemisphere continental climates Discussion of topical but fundamental concerns including El Niño global warming and climate variability is incorporated throughout the text The study of the climatology of the southern hemisphere is fundamental to our understanding of climates and climatic issues across the globe The book will therefore be of particular interest to scientists interested in climate with a focus beyond the southern hemisphere as well as those with a specialised interest in all or part of the southern hemisphere It is also a significant addition to the literature for climate researchers as well as for undergraduate students studying climatology in the atmospheric environmental and earth sciences Philosophical Transactions of the

Royal Society of London, 2008 Each issue of Transactions B is devoted to a specific area of the biological sciences including clinical science All papers are peer reviewed and edited to the highest standards Published on the 29th of each month Transactions B is essential reading for all biologists Journal of the North Carolina Academy of Science, 2002

Forest Fires and Regional Haze in Southeast Asia Peter Eaton, Miroslav Radojevic, 2001 The fires and resulting air pollution which afflicted Southeast Asia in 1997 and 1998 were a major environmental disaster affecting the livelihood and health of the people of the region destroying forest and wildlife resources releasing greenhouse gases and having serious implications for the rich biodiversity of the islands of Borneo and Sumatra Individual chapters have been contributed by international experts and cover a range of issues The relation of the El Niño effect to droughts and fires is discussed and the history of fires in the region is outlined Although the fires were associated with long periods of drought in most cases they had human causes and the land and forest management policies responsible for them are also identified Another chapter describes the important role remote sensing played in monitoring and locating the fires and haze Other contributions are concerned with the chemistry of haze the long range transport of pollutants and their modelling the effects on forest ecosystems and the implications for global climate change Health impacts of the air pollution are discussed and the costs in economic terms are analysed The inability of the Indonesian government to control the fires the public responses to pollution problems and efforts at international co operation are also discussed as is the portrayal of the issues in the media
